Today, as with the previous years, notebooks and tablets are constantly increasing in numbers. At the same time, the modern home also started to tend toward greater space on the top of the family. Two extremes - agree not only that could lead to problems, but also that can be arranged in two ways, the first being the previous way to back up that is by using a removable hard disk, the second not having it, but in turn following the standard and use a portable device like an external hard disk. The user may not be aware of the fact that the use of a hard disk is faster than the use of a flash memory, but it also has the advantage of capacity; a hard disk currently maxes at 128 Gigabyte, while flash memory can easily be set to 2 Gigabytes. The good thing about an external hard disk is that the same can be used in all modern Windows operating system and Android smartphones, and tablets with a USB port. And, since your tablet or notebook can directly access the device - and you do not have to any battery pack and cables - you save time and money for the purchase of additional components. Just remember that the function of your USB port is for external devices to connect to the computer, but not to connect to each other. To make your external USB hard disk "discoverable" to your computer, you will need to ensure that the system has the USB OTG (On-The-Go) driver, which is no problem at all. Tap, swipe, press:

a SwipePad is a device that is coming to replace the mouse; but what does a mouse need a SwipePad? Exclusive new feature: the innovative swipe concept Using the swipe gesture you can move the mouse on any touch surface The SwipePad is equipped with a touch sensor, so you can easily use it without a mouse. To put it simply, this mouse creates a physical link between any surface and your computer. With the SwipePad you can use any surface: a table, a glass surface, a card or even your hand, with the fingers touching it. The touch sensor reads the pressure that you are applying on the surface, and takes into account that your hand is the template for your gestures. The technical principle: if you are moving your hand like a pointer, you can use your hand as a pointer. In addition, the SwipePad supports an innovative concept: an extension point to any PC. This

• Quality: • Speed: • Features: The best features of the software are: This invention relates to apparatus for preventing fishing gear from becoming fouled in use, and more particularly to such apparatus for use with nets which are often permitted to float on the surface of the water to be fished. Consequently, when the net drags in the water, it is common for fouling materials such as weeds, the tentacles of jellyfish, or other debris to become attached to the net. The net will, in time, be so fouled that it will no longer be effective in gathering fish. It will then have to be removed from the water and cleaned. This is a time consuming and laborious process. In some situations it has been necessary to cut away the net before it becomes so fouled. It is therefore an object of the invention to provide a new and improved apparatus for preventing fouling of fishing nets. It is another object of the invention to provide such an apparatus which will be inexpensive to make, and which will be quickly and easily attached to an existing net, without deforming or otherwise modifying the net. It is a further object of the invention to provide such an apparatus which will not become fouled itself. This invention relates generally to gas powered guns and pertains, more specifically, to a gas powered gun having a body with a breech which can be mounted on a table such as at a shooting range or the like and which includes a diverter for the distribution of gas ejected from the casing of the gun from multiple ports provided thereon to the chamber of the chamber of the gun to improve the recoil thereof. The prior art reveals several patents which have been designed to include multi-port breech operating devices for gas powered guns. These include the following U.S. Pat. Nos.: 1,746,907; 1,832,236; 1,848,327; 1,953,310; 3,138,718; 3,553,844; 3,604,096; 3,620,622; and 3,728,058. However, none of the foregoing patents disclose a pump jockey feature which is common to all of these patents in that each provides a diverter for a plurality of gas ejection ports which extend out of the back of the gun, and they fail to disclose a housing which extends around the periphery of the barrel to eliminate the use of a spool within the cylinder.
