It was the second time the race was held at the Peninsula, having first been held in 2007. The event's defending champion was Hetey Jo Alpers, who won the race ahead of Australian Tony Sharpe and Canadian Jacquie Pagliaro. Alpers' win was the first for an Ironman New Zealand race at the Peninsula and the first for an Ironman Australia event for any woman since 2014. I remember an environment called something like \chapteringpg in natbib, however, this has disappeared since natbib no longer uses natbib.sty. A: In LaTeX4e, the \clearpage instruction at the end of the preamble adds a page break in the current section (provided that the option to automatically place a page break after that instruction was turned on in the preamble). A: According to answers here: Addendum to the accepted answer: This page-breaking after a chapter is suitable if you want to write the chapter using the begin{} to end{} constructs, but if you don't use that for the chapter, in a separate file or from the preamble in the main file, you need to add \clearpage between each subheading to ensure they don't keep reusing the same space. Otherwise you may 648931e174
