This is a dark and psychological horror journey full of twists and turns which you will discover along your journey through Gloomywood. An old legend, born in the Stone Age, will resurface in the modern days of 2052... The legend of the Gloomy Ghost Train. Your aim is to survive in a world plagued by nightmares and seek out the truth... "We wanted the atmosphere to be claustrophobic and oppressive" says Frederick Raynal, the co-creator of 2Dark. "We wanted the player to be alone in the dark, in a creepy world, to be afraid of the night and of being attacked at any moment." "You never know what the night will throw at you..." says Gilles Pifarte, the lead artist of 2Dark. The game was in development with great difficulty for a period of three years. It was a personal challenge. According to Gilles Pifarte, "there were moments of intense anxiety while listening to the music of Frederick Raynal and Samuel Safa, knowing that it was going to be used in the game. The atmosphere and the presentation of the game is the result of a certain type of collaboration." 2Dark is a game designed and developed by a team of four. This project, which occurred in the context of a small independent studio (RC3 Studios), is really a work of passion. The team is made up of Gilles Pifarte, game designer, and Frederick Raynal, composer and sound designer. Philippe Sureau, the visual artist, and Ivan Rosetti, the graphic designer, contributed with their artwork and conceptual input. Features: Personalizes and offers deeper insight into the world of 2Dark. Each time you replay the game, the world will be different, resulting in an original and surprising experience. The game shows a photographic look which captures the designs and originality of the world of 2Dark. 2Dark will be presented in cinematics and screenshots available only in the Steam client. 3 different playable characters, each with their own skills and attributes. Key Features: 7 unique environments to explore: beach, forest, quarry, river, swamp, subway, and abandoned subway. 12 types of enemies and twisted characters: wolf, pig, goat, puma, hyena, she-wolf, chimera, goat-pig, hunter, pirate, gangster and a diabolical clown c9d1549cdd

I have been watching some of the Twilight Zone on Netflix this week (anyone whose had an account for a while has seen the ones I've been watching). I am obsessed with Twilight Zone. The first ever episode I ever saw was Night Call in which Outer Space is populated by a variety of different alien races. It is a fun and very educational episode. The last time we spoke we discussed whether or not to open the world of vampires. We came to the conclusion that they are a creation that belongs here. Something that we feel is an opportunity to express ourselves, where does the true humanity come out; it is my answer to the question “What makes a good vampire?” Does the vampire really have to be a good person? Can’t be unhuman (according to Twilight/True Blood culture anyway). So the question is asked would I really be able to be a good vampire? I think I answered that question pretty well. However, what I’m comfortable admitting is that I never thought I would really be able to be a good one. Good, evil, those are the monomyths we grew up with which are the foundation of our conditioning. Not really molds though. No one grows up and says “I want to be a vampire so I can go out and kill people.” Well, maybe someone does or someone will grow up loving the dark side who will seriously consider the life of a vampire. There are definitely those who fall into those categories, but that’s my whole point, don’t fall into that category. Don’t become serial killers. Staying human is so much better for us than going from humanity to something and then back. There is a process, and the process that this life gives us. There is a direction, a meaning. A way to walk with meaning. The realm of the vampires, though this is really an artifact of our culture, does reveal something of the true realm of humans. Much of our society hangs on whether humans can actually be good or not. Can they be so similar to bad yet so different at the same time? Is it possible for this construct of society to hold a human together while bringing out the worst in them? Really society itself is lacking so much. A way to test your motives. A way to see what your end game is, and ways to not fall into that. The idea that we can come across as any thing other than human facility's only survivor was a young man named Mark Lawrence, someone who wasn't even there at the time. He didn't know what had happened until the doctors called him back home. And even then, he didn't know what he was responsible for. Or who he was responsible for. Mark wasn't prepared for the things he found out when he went back. "The Complex" takes place after "The Voice" - an immersive horror experience that creates an entirely new game play experience. A detective who has been called to examine a mysterious man with an acute case of cancer, you and an assistant arrive at a house where the only occupant, a man called "Karela", has died. You find a notebook with three letters. Two of these letters are on the top desk in the living room and the third letter is on the floor. Yet no one who ever entered this house ever saw the notebook, the desk, or the floor, and no one has seen the letter on the floor. Then suddenly, it seems to be the start of "The Voice" all over again. Examine the scene and examine the notebook. Control him as he examines the notebook. Questions may arise as to why he is walking around with one arm. What is "The Voice?" Find out in "The Complex". The next part of "The Voice" is now available. Features: Direct the Detective as he investigates the scene of a mystery. Before you start, make sure to acquire the basic knowledge and facts of the case. Examine the items in the scene. Interact with the scene and answer questions. A secret mystery. Multiple endings. Multiple scenes with different endings. An immersive horror experience. Become the Detective. An assistant follows you around. Control the Detective. Control him to open doors. Control him to examine items. Open doors. Turn lights on and off. The Assistant's duty. Use items. Use telephones. Use the mirror. The Voice. An
