by Invisible_Rival on 07:36 02 December 2016 Thank you for a very clear video. I have been looking for something like this for a long time. Awesome! Posted by invisible_rival on 14:07 20 February 2017 Thank you so much for this nice tutorial, very clear! I really appreciate it, thank you for your effort. I'm new in S2E and i've been struggling to go through it, this tutorial, I can't wait to continue by myself It's seems like the tutorial wasn't made with Windows users in mind. There are a lot of things which could be explained more clearly. Some people are not very good with command line, and in that case using the integration with Steam requires them to know how to do everything manually, which requires less explaining and more practising. In conclusion, I have no problem with what this tutorial does, it just that he only explains a lot of things which I personally couldn't make sense of. The series has been successful at doing so because it manages to allow the simplest and classic material - bamboo, rice straw and folkloric poetry - to combine. The approach of Samurai

Warriors allows these elements to come together naturally, unlike with only those as central to traditional games. However, this approach does come with a consequence: the two most powerful, traditional-inspired weapons - the spear and the sword - have yet to be used in any gameplay. Recently, the above two weapons have been revealed in series, but the display levels of detail of those weapons have been rather low. To create a powerful weapon that represents the spear and sword is what the development team has been aiming to do. Today, we present the prototype that was developed, as part of time-consuming stages such as the development of team environments, conceptualization and production. The Explorer's Hat and Battle Sail (quite new designs compared to the original weaponry) are both highly detailed and immersive. Even weapons in the Samurai Warriors series tend to be improved when handed down from one generation to another. Such is the case with this weapon, which combines both traditional materials and the latest technological achievements. Sword: "Sai" Katana. A side-handle Katana with a leading edge design. Due to its chiseled design and convex edge, this weapon had almost no weight, allowing for the player to swing it around with very high speeds. Its blade has been forged with a strong sword-grade steel. Sente Armour. Long, tight, and rigid, it protects the front and sides of the body. A traditional, protective type is being designed without harm to player's movements, while protecting with the lightweight combination of fabric and foam. Opening Top As the symbol of economic power, this piece has been composed out of two parts that can be separated. Inside the plate is a weapon signal chamber, which stores and advances the console of the weapon. The hidden parts can be replaced with most weapons from the series. Battle Sail. A side-handle Katana with a straight, convex edge. Due to the shape of the blade, even though this weapon is
