Budget airlines slashed fares to cope with the coronavirus outbreak on Saturday after governments urged Europe's airlines to do the same. Croatia's Zadar airport has closed for security reasons after the government said that the average person has a 50 percent chance of catching the virus. That's why a tourist resort near the airport has closed. Only a few flights have taken off at Zadar Airport.

Passengers are waiting for further instructions. "Everything is being done to prevent the epidemic, there is not (enough) space, mostly because of health reasons", Dalibor Ujevic, head of the airport, said Saturday. Zadar is an important regional hub for Croatia's Balkan neighbor, Serbia. Croatia's chief epidemiologist said last week that the virus "is becoming more and more widespread" and Serbia has announced that they are now dealing with a potential health crisis. Two people tested positive in Croatia on Friday and both died. Croatia, Serbia and Slovenia have closed all border crossings. Italy was the latest country to close its borders on Sunday. The Balkans were the last major European region to see Zika, which was not considered a major health threat. Test your brain and increase your digital dexterity in this busy quiz

E' corretto che lo si assapori? Forse, ma davvero è importante che si è in un posto qualsiasi. La fatica è un nome, è una parola tutta fatta di sensazioni, ma ti sembra davvero che la pasta abbia una tale sensazione di vino? Eh no. La pasta, è fatta con semplici ingredienti: acqua e farina.
