Q: Custom scrollview with 2 sections in android I need to be able to scroll vertically inside a custom view, with 2 sections, e.g. one at the top and the other at the bottom, not a linear scroll, but on a top section I have a few TextView's, and on a bottom section I have a TableLayout. It should basically be a small JQuery example: `$('#top').click();`
`$('#bottom').click();` I've already tried to implement this inside a custom view, but I can't figure how to access the child elements in a different section, and how to 'scroll' them. Thanks for any help, here's a minimum example: `public class CustomView extends ScrollView { public CustomView(Context context)`

I guess you are using HTCs and probably some changes in the AOSP and only some devices are friendly to these new instructions. I think you should try this on some Galaxy S3 and I believe it will work, at least the market says that it should work on some of the Samsung Galaxy S3 (I am now using HTC One V). I would first download the ROMs one by one, and install one and verify if you can access the Store as per normal or you will have some issues. That's up from 38 percent two years ago. • On Friday, French President Nicolas Sarkozy secured the passage of a deal enabling a French-Italian bank to take over a Belgian lender after winning an endorsement from EU creditors. Next up is Greece, whose efforts to help make its sovereign debt sustainable are being closely watched. • The EU's first batch of European commissioners will be sworn in today after the candidate from Greece was chosen to be the European Commission's first-ever female head. and finish it. • A chill experience. The pace is deliberately a bit slower than other fast-paced platformers. • A retro adventure platformer where you play as Simona, a servant to the Purple Cloak Reapers, tasked to claim the soul of the Fisher King who has hidden behind the moon. • Travel through varied interconnected levels in the desolate land of Lunatergo. Explore caves and plains and battle roaming beasts to find the three Manors, where clues to finishing your quest are hidden. • Meet various characters from the world of Lunatergo: four fairies, four sprites and a few "weird" inhabitants of the grim landscape. • Use these characters to navigate the environment and move from place to place. • Collect more than 50+ unique items, including power-ups. • Battle many different enemies with your scythe. Simona wields the Moonlit Scythe, a slow but versatile weapon more than capable of taking down the most ferocious of foes. • Use your three abilities to tackle various challenges: "Mimicry" lets you mimic enemies' attack patterns; "Flight" lets you

(video game) Fantastic Contraption is a puzzle video game developed by Small Fish Games and published by JoWood Interactive. The game was released for Microsoft Windows in 2016 and was later released for macOS in 2018. It was awarded as the Xbox Live Indie Games's "Game of the Year" in 2016 and "Best Puzzle Game" by Pocket Gamer. Gameplay The game features 100 levels and 88 mechanical parts, with each part consisting of up to five 2D pieces. The player must assemble the parts together to build mechanical contraptions before the time limit runs out. The aim is for the player to create movable robotic contraptions to perform tasks, such as lifting items, moving objects, and making holes and paths. The player uses mechanical parts such as gears, bins, levers, wheels, etc. to construct these contraptions and can drag them around to reassemble into a variation of the contraption that performed the task for which it is intended to be used. The movement of the parts can be controlled using the mouse to aim and drag the parts, and left-clicking brings up a tooltip that provides the ability to manipulate individual parts. The game originally featured 18 puzzle types, with three difficulty levels per type. The game featured the option to switch between two difficulty levels, and to have the order in which parts are dropped and are rearranged chosen by the user. The game is compatible with Microsoft Windows and macOS. It was released for the iOS App Store in November 2017, soon after its release on macOS. Development The game was developed by the developer Small Fish Games. The game was crowdfunded on Kickstarter; at the time, the Kickstarter campaign attracted over one thousand backers. The developer explained that the inspiration behind the game was from an entire afternoon spent making different mechanical contraptions. Later the developer explained that he was inspired by his childhood where he started making contraptions in his room.
