The Espresso Empire is a bustling coffee shop full of bold personalities, skilled employees, and delicious coffee drinks! Your goal in the game is to become the coffee shop tycoon by creating the best coffee shop in the city! Aside from coffee, customers will be expecting fast, friendly service and great tasting menu and drinks. To make sure that your best coffee is ready, you must hire the best equipment, pay attention to your workers' moods, and manage your cash reserves. How far will you go to make your coffee empire the best? To the top! How to play: 1. Open file named Espresso Tycoon v1.0 2. Select option from menu of the game and hit the "play" buttonDemo In a quest to find the world's best coffee and tea, we headed for London. The city that never sleeps, home to the best restaurants, bars, bakeries, and coffee shops. With busy schedules and time constraints, we couldn't wait to get started. The moment we arrived at our London hotel, we headed for Pembroke Road Market. A foodie heaven, the market is filled with market stalls, food sellers, and a variety of freshly prepared meals that all look mouth-watering. So, what did we do on our first free day in London? We stopped by the Old Spitalfields Market. The tiny street market is home to London's very first fishmonger, the Old British Ice Company, and contains over 140 shops, boutiques, bars, and restaurants. A lot of London's tastiest coffee and tea can be found at St. John Bread & Wine bar, a small café in Soho. A clean and comfortable space with a range of high quality coffee, tea, and little necessities such as pasta or bagels. Le Menu owners, who meet every morning to plan their day, prepared us delicious home cooked breakfasts, and served us interesting tea blends. One day, it was the special house blend – a simple blend of Kenyan Gold, Madagascan Orange, and South American Cinnamon. Another day, it was the black and white melange of Fiery Jamaican Orange, Ethiopian, and Spanish Fino. We both had drinks, and were immediately drawn to their single origin Kenyan coffee, indigenous to the hills of Kenya. To be honest, we were not expecting that level of coffee quality, and were glad

In DYNASTY WARRIORS 9 Empires, heroes can now use a wide variety of unconventional items as a permanent, premium feature. Mix and match these items to create your ideal loadout to suit your play style. As with all other DYNASTY WARRIORS 9 game content, this content is only available to users who have the DYNASTY WARRIORS 9 Empires Season Pass. If you do not already have the DYNASTY WARRIORS 9 Empires Season Pass, please purchase it from the PlayStation® Store. If you have already purchased the DYNASTY WARRIORS 9 Empires Season Pass please log in to this account before ordering content from the PlayStation® Store. You can use the following items in the DYNASTY WARRIORS 9 Empires Price List: "How are you going to be able to use that on normal units? It's obviously not going to affect them. Well… I think that it's a good item, but it's only effective in battles with Champions, so we're not using it. It's a good item, but it doesn't fit the Magatama. It's up to you… You can use it in battles with any unit. If it does what it says it can do, it should be able to cut down on the number of casualties due to several Champion's buff effects." [Champion's Commander] [Champion's Commander ~ Transcendence] A Champion's Commander appears in the 2nd part of a Champion summon. It's your job to construct a Command Center with this unit. You can upgrade its level using Allodem X4. Once your Command Center is 3 times higher than the level of the unit you're upgrading, you can transform it into a Champion's Commander and increase its level by 1. When you do so, its level becomes 3, its HP increases to 20, its Ultimate tier raises by 1. [Champion's Commanders] These are Champions who always carry out a specific duty. Since it's your job to construct their Command Center, you can place them anywhere in your army. After the job is done, the Champion's Command Center will appear and you'll be able to transform it into a Champion's c9d1549cdd

It used to work fine, but now it doesn't work. How can i detect whether the screen is being rotated? I tried using onConfigurationChanged, but that only gives me the rotation of the device not the screen's rotation. A: The only solution I found is to save the rotation of the device before you start your activity, then when the activity starts you check the rotation and set the orientation of your activity. You would need to pass the device rotation to the activity in the intent that starts it. A: It seems like the standard solution for this is to override the setContentView() method of your activity to use the appropriate layout for the desired orientation. public void setContentView(int layoutResID) { //... switch(getScreenOrientation()) { case Surface.ROTATION_90: setContentView(R.layout.landscape); break; case Surface.ROTATION_180: setContentView(R.layout.port

 Carries Us Off to the Future Life can sometimes be so much more than a video game, but is that really the case in gaming? And what does that mean for virtual reality in particular? Don't expect me to tell you this week what I think of the Vive VR headset...yet. I'm still contemplating it, you see, and that said, there's a new game coming to Vive that really does transport me to a fantasy world that is set in the near future. It's called Detective Simulator, and I'm hoping it'll have you read more thoughts about where virtual reality gaming is heading. At PCGamesN we're often on the look out for games that resonate with us at an intellectual, artistic, sociological and political level. Like commenting in a strong piece of writing that rings true, you might say. Detective Simulator fits that bill for me. A lot of what's here is drawn from my history of having bounced around in the game industry as either a game creator or a critic, and the game has a story that is, in its own way, equally telling. I first interviewed the developers of this game about a year ago here on PCGamesN, when they were still supplying it as an IndieGoGo project, but it was taking much longer than expected to be completed. My hope then was that their campaign would raise enough money to cover them using their own source code to make the game (something everyone else would have to pay other people for), but one delay after another had meant that's not going to happen. That's also not a good time for anyone to have to undertake a project, as their own time could just as easily be being given to making the next great game. But with the game at this point, they've just reached the point where they can start to provide gameplay screenshots and have said the game is running better than before. Then there's another little problem with trying to get an actual review of the game in for an unpaid, offsite report: it's the middle of the night on a Sunday. So the day after a decent chunk of the gaming world was having fun with Ready Player One, I was set to retry the (generally good) folks at Headup Games again, with an editor that was happy to have one of their games on offer. It's intriguing to have one of the oldest of the darker places to get games in the final days of 2013, and I wasn't about to give up my slot, especially not Pathfinder Map Pack: Starship Corridors is the first of two Pathfinder Map Packs for Fantasy Grounds Unity. A follow up to the Pathfinder Map Pack for Fantasy Grounds 3.5, this map pack provides 5x8 inch, modular and customizable map tiles to create starship corridors and other interiors. NOTE: This is not intended to function as a stand-alone product or for narrative adventures. It is intended to work in conjunction with other products, such as the Pathfinder Guide to the Starship, to provide adventure designers with tools to create their adventures. Each individual set of 5x8 maps may require a series of stargates or other encounters to be placed in specific areas. Starfleet Map Pack: Starship Corridors is best used in conjunction with the Pathfinder Guide to the Starship. Approximately 100% of the content in this product is original and created solely by Gamelyn Games.
