FIFA players will also be able to unlock these motion capture skins by completing challenges and in-game objectives, such as intercepting a pass and receiving an assist. It is easy to see why EA's FIFA title has been a major hit on consoles. The game's release on Xbox One and PlayStation 4 in November 2015 was accompanied by unprecedented success, with aggregate sales surpassing 100 million in a matter of days. FIFA 22's multiplayer mode, "Creator," is an ideal example of what EA has been striving for with its own Frostbite engine. A key feature of FIFA is its ability to simulate realistic football gameplay, and with "Creator" AI-controlled teams can play alongside the standard FIFA players on one of 11 game modes. FIFA Ultimate Team gameplay, the ability to create a custom team, and online challenges round out EA's top game modes. "FIFA has always been a game of immersing the player into a memorable and realistic football experience," said Andy Burrage, Executive Producer at EA. "As the FIFA team, we've gone further than ever before to get this incredible depth of emotion to play out. We have brought a new level of realism to the game with the new 'HyperMotion Technology,' "said Burrage. "We've also packed FIFA with the many ways to play that the player will always find a fantastic experience. FIFA is the most authentic football game on any platform." "We're thrilled to be working with the FIFA team on an incredible launch title for the series," said Alistair Patterson, CEO of Rival. "The team has done a fantastic job at crafting a gaming experience that a fan of FIFA can fall in love with." FIFA 22 Creative is available now on Xbox One and PlayStation 4, and EA Access members can play the game starting today, while everyone else can purchase FIFA 22 on Digital, Xbox One,

PlayStation 4 or Origin. FIFA 22 Highlights:

- Motion-Capture-Based Player Physics

Since FIFA 19, players can use the Frostbite Engine to control highly-detailed AI-controlled teams, featuring a realistic amount of physics, that are controlled by the player in the gameplay. FIFA 22 builds on this and includes motion-capture-based player physics. This means real-world player motion is recorded and used to drive player movements in game.

System Requirements:

Requires a video card with a hardware-based rendering capability (V-sync off, no anti-aliasing) or the ability to use software rendering. The game is tested on a GeForce GTX 750, but runs in less than average quality with a GeForce GTX 960. If you use software rendering, you can play in very high quality on a laptop with a nVidia Geforce GT740 GPU, but the notebook screen may experience the infamous “screen tearing” effect. Software rendering has been known to work on lower-end hardware, but it’
