The problem is that convertToRDD requires the keys to be defined, but I have no idea how to do that with a dataframe. The process for transforming a data frame to RDD that I'm doing now: val extracters = new Extractors val dataFrame = spark.read.option("header", "true").option("inferSchema", "true").schema(schema).csv(path) dataFrame.createOrReplaceTempView("v") val transformers = new Transformers dataFrame.select("v.*").rdd.map(extractor) The schema is: root |-- id: long (nullable = true) |-- type: string (nullable = true) |-- name: string (nullable = true) |-- product: string (nullable = true) |-- region: string (nullable = true) |-- address: string (nullable = true) |-- phone: string (nullable = true) |-- email: string (nullable = true) So how can I do this? A: The last two lines of your code are unnecessary. You should simply call spark.read.csv(path). This will directly read the csv file to a Dataset which you can then map to a Spark DataFrame using the schema and columns, or else use the inferSchema option to let Spark infer the schema. val dataFrame = spark.read.option("header", "true").option("inferSchema", "true").csv(
