Clyffe Pritchard Ashbourne Community Cricket Club is a cricket club based at Ashbourne, County Durham, England. The club fields eleven teams at various levels, ranging from Under 13 to Over 60s. The senior side plays in the ECB Durham Premier League and the club holds the title of Durham League Champions. The club was founded in 1961, after a suggestion by then ECB President and former Gloucestershire and England Captain Ken Bowden. Bowden suggested that an area in the centre of Ashbourne should be set aside for cricketing purposes. There is a great disparity between those who are otherwise healthy and the malnourished, undernourished, overweight and underweight in the United States. Nutritionists agree that the best way to promote well-being is to promote good health. This article reviews the concept of normal human values in order to inform the health professional of the determinants of these values. The subjects covered include the history of human values, the development of the idea of normal human values and the relationship between the determinants of health (and the components of normal human health) and the distribution of health in the population. Many of the determinants of health are based on the literature of the beginning of the 20th century; thus, this review presents the current view on the
