About This Game: "You are Lily, an orphan who has lived her whole life in your home village. You've been raised from a little girl and taught everything you know, and now you are of age to go on the pilgrimage to finally meet your parents. This is what has been planned for you, and you will play through a series of puzzles to get there. You start off as a plucky girl, but you are a survivor and nothing will stand in your way." This game is about using logic and reason to solve puzzles, particularly involving logic gates and other logic-based logical circuits. You start off as Lily, an orphan child who has lived all of her life in your home village. The village is situated on the shore of a lake, and from birth you've been taken care of and raised by your friends and family. Elder, however, had other ideas for you. Over the course of the game, you'll take on the role of a girl on a specific quest. Elder has chosen you because you are the perfect candidate. You are smart, resourceful, and a brave girl. However, Elder has you go through a series of "The Final Trials" in order to provide you with the skills that you need in the overall plan, and to ensure that you are worthy of the pilgrimage. At times you will be at the mercy of a logic gate, which controls the state of a room and responds to the state of logic gates in the room that surround it. At other times, you will be at the mercy of a simple item that controls a specific room or area of the game. Solve these puzzles and you will eventually reach the end. As you make your way forward, you will first learn to lead, then follow, and then master a rudimentary logic gate. You will unlock a true logical command, and eventually, you will turn the tables on Elder and be ready to take your place in the world. Ripley's Believe It or Not! is an action c9d1549cdd

Prisoners in the Ruzar house can be found at either of the guard and officer posts The House Search button displays the number of prisoners there currently (locked), and hides your House [ALL]. When unlocked, a prisoner counts as an unlocked visitor. When one prisoner runs on the world map, all other prisoners in the Ruzar house (from other cells) can be unlocked, in order to unlock them. A player who is controlling the prisoner that is found can unlock any prison in the house of that type. Prisoners who are asked to leave the house, will be given a reason as to why they are leaving the House/Building. Prisoners that walk onto the world map after leaving the house with a job are added to the Prisoner Mission list. Prisoners who leave the world with a job are updated in the Prisoner Mission list. Fortuna Imperatore is a narrative-driven visual novel set in the 14th century. This ambitious tale begins in the darkest days of the Hundred Years' War, as the English forces led by John of Gaunt are poised to strike. At a remote castle, a simple girl named Fortuna serves tea to a wounded nobleman. Orphaned by war and destitute, she's taken in by the castle's ageing Lady Clarissa, who nurses her back to health. When Lady Clarissa learns that Fortuna is a reincarnation of Christ, she puts her claim to the throne of England. Fortuna's role in the drama of the war emerges slowly as she travels between the world of the living and the world of the dead, encountering all manner of people. What makes Fortuna Imperatore unique is that the story is told almost exclusively through journal entries, letters and drawings. Written in a series of medieval Italian, the dialogue is actually a transcription of the conversations the player would have heard between real historical figures. This is a narrative experience, but it does not dwell on the trappings of the visual novel genre. The game manages to integrate visual storytelling and traditional narrative structure into a unified whole. It is also a simulation, with player interaction and statistics. Play begins with an epilogue, whose choices affect the events of the game. "Fortuna Imperatore" was written by Luca Cerichini, directed by Emiliano Micheletto and produced by G.Gip4d. Key Features: - The visual novel genre mixed with the traditional narrative of visual novel. - Over 90 minutes of story. - NPCs' reactions take the form of comic strips. - The game can be played in two different routes: Passive and Active. - The player is able to give orders to characters in both routes. - A variety of skills and equipment are available to each character. - There are multiple endings; if the player makes the right choices, the story will unfold differently in each route. Who will you be? Fortuna - A young woman sheltered by a castle, she manages to maintain a degree of independence by reading books and playing games. However, she is forced to make some decisions in life with little choice in the matter. Nadir - A young blacksmith who has no strong ties to his past, but finds himself caught up in
