Q: How to find a variable from another script Is there a way to find a variable I have created in another script? //script A.js var a = 3; //script B.js var b = a; Is there a way to get the value of a from within the script B? A: //script A.js var a = 3; //script B.js var myVar = 'a'; var aValue = document.getElementById('myVar').value; You can get the value using the DOM. If you need to send a value from A to B, you can use a message passing, for example using a postMessage //script A.js var a = 3; window.onmessage = function(e) { if (e.data == 'aVal') { document.getElementById('btnReceive').click(); } }

```
//script B.js window.onmessage =
function(e) { if (e.data == 'aVal') {
  var aVal = e.data; } }

The present invention relates generally to the fields of air handling equipment and heat transfer control systems and, more particularly, to an economizer system and associated method for controlling energy transfer between a primary and secondary heat exchanger. Various types of equipment and systems known in the prior art employ heat exchangers to transfer heat between media in order to provide various functions. Generally, many heat exchanger designs are quite sophisticated, involving a plurality of fluid condu
